Aims and Scope: Development Growth & Differentiation is published by the Japanese Society of Developmental Biologists and publishes original papers dealing with all aspects of developmental phenomena in all kinds of organisms, including plants and microorganisms. Papers in any of the following fields will be considered: developmental genetics, growth, differentiation, morphogenesis, cellular kinetics, fertilization, cell division, dormancy, germination, metamorphosis, regeneration and pathogenesis, at the molecular biological, biochemical, biophysical and analytically morphological levels. Reports on techniques applicable to the above fields are also considered. Occasional reviews on subjects selected by the Editors will also be published. Brief, complete papers will be accepted, but not preliminary reports. All articles except for invited papers are peer reviewed by at least two researchers expert in the field of the submitted paper.
